Not illustrated. 1832 Excerpt: . . . about 40 at present attend, of whom 16 are Protestants; girls receive payment for their work; connected with Kildare-Street Society; have lending library; the Bible (Old and New Testament) read. This school has been much thinned, having declined progressively since the priests began to visit it, in May last, when the number on the books was 201. In the beginning of this month reduced to 115, but the average attendance is only from 30 to 40; some of the children have not joined any other school; 78 are said to have gone to that of the Nunnery. Same day. Called at Mrs. S. s, a Quaker lady, near Clonmell; has had for four years past a small and well-regulated school, in which she received and instructed 24 girls, entirely at her own expense; superintended by Mrs. S. and the young ladies of her family. This school...
